Long Green Farm House is a two story, three bay long stone house which was built around 1790. It has a two story wing with lean to on both back and front, part of which is a log structure. The south facade of the stone portion is laid in a more finished fashion than the other sides. There is a plaster date plaque on the west gable, which has lots its date, surrounded by an oval of bricks. Above the openings are three-part lintels, the center stone being a keystone. Sash are 6/6 throughout. It is covered with an "A" roof. The chimneys are within the gables and are covered with stucco. There is a modern enclosed porch across the south facade and an open porch on the north facade which conceal any windows which may be in the basement. On the property is a small brick necessary house. There are only a few such structures in Cecil County, one other being a Greenfield, near Cecilton.
